NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

- Contributions to Special Education Perspectives may refer to any aspect of special education practice, policy or research. They may take the form of position papers, critical reviews of literature, brief reports of action research or empirical studies. In line with the practical focus of the journal, papers that provide practitioners with research-based support and strategies are especially welcome. Potential authors may like to look at Teaching Exceptional Children as a model for this type of submission.
- The journal has two main sections: (A) Practically Speaking, containing papers that have received editorial review (see advertisement); and (B) Refereed papers (see 5.).
- Please forward four hard copies of the paper to:
Michael Arthur-Kelly
Special Education Centre
University of Newcastle
CALLAGHAN NSW 2308
along with a covering letter indicating the names of all authors, contact details for correspondence, and a statement to indicate that the paper has not been published elsewhere, nor is the paper currently under review elsewhere.
- It is imperative that prospective authors follow the conventions of the American Psychological Association (APA) Fourth Edition when preparing papers. Authors are advised to consult published referencing guides or previous journal issues in which APA guidelines are followed. The manuscript should be typed, double-spaced and use one-side of A4 paper only. Italics should be used for sources in the reference list rather than underlining. An abstract of approximately 100 words should be included. All figures should be high-quality camera-ready copy, presented on separate sheets with a descriptive caption. The location of each figure should be indicated in the text of the paper. Tables should be included in the body of the text.
- All papers submitted to the refereed section of the journal follow a double-blind review process. Three members of the editorial committee (or other invited experts) provide feedback on the papers and monitor revisions as appropriate. It is therefore important that you do not identify yourself in the body of the paper.
- When submitting a paper, please do not include a disk. If accepted after review/revisions, you will be asked to supply a disk copy of the paper, preferably in MS Word format.
